Dear Friend

We are happy to present you the first issue of The Liberal Position, the newsletter of the Indian Liberal Group.

Also enclosed with this Newsletter is a reprint of the last book written by the ILG's founder, Mr. Minoo Masani. Entitled "We Indians" and written for the young, the book can be said to be a kind of an epilogue. The prologue being a book he wrote in 1944 entitled "Our India", also for the young. The reprint was made possible thanks to a donation from the Sir Dorabji Tata Trust. This copy comes to you with our compliments. Extra copies are available to members of the ILG at 20% discount plus postage. The printed price is Rs.50.00

It is my hope that this newsletter, with your active participation will be a lively affair and contribute to strengthening the fraternal bonds between members.

With fraternal greetings

S. V. Raju
President

Until recently we thought we had two types of members - those who owned a computer and those who did not! Today we are a little wiser. There are really three types viz., those who have a computer and access the internet; those who do not have a computer; and those who have a computer but don't access the internet, for whatever reason. The Liberal Position is addressed to members in all three categories. This newsletter is therefore an attempt to cross this digital divide!

The purpose of The Liberal Position is to keep you informed of our activities, share with you our problems, discuss new initiatives and generally function as a medium to interact with one another. Also, beginning with the next issue we shall be delighted to carry your suggestions on organisation - structure and method of working - which will improve the functioning of the ILG. Also, your views and comments on current issues from a Liberal perspective.

Since The Liberal Position can also be read on our website www.liberalsindia.com, you can post your responses on the website as well.

Let us begin this inaugural issue by reminding ourselves of the values that brought us together and why we decided to reorganise the Indian Liberal Group.

1. We said that our primary purpose was to foster the values of freedom, responsibility, tolerance, social justice and equality of opportunity, and.

2. our primary objective was to defend the fundamental liberal belief in the right of individuals to personal liberty, liberty of thought, expression, belief, faith and worship; the right of free association; the right to private property, the free choice of occupation; the right to information so as to exercise one's rights meaningfully.

The first were the shared values that brought us together and the second is action-oriented: Our determination to defend the rights that spring out of these shared values. The first would remain pious wishes without the second. Hence the decision to reorganise the ILG and to make it an instrument capable of defending and promoting these values

In pursuance of this resolve we did two things. We gave ourselves a set of Basic Principles as our Guidelines for Action and a Constitution which defined the structure of our organisation.

Why did we decide to reorganise the Indian Liberal Group? We decided to do so for the simple reason that in current discussions and debates on public policy, Liberalism's point of view was going by default. The ILG which was founded in 1964 was essentially a debating group. This was understandable, for, at that time, there was a political party that espoused Liberal policies and the ILG's discussions helped this party in its policy formulations. The situation is now different. Barring a small unit of that party in Mumbai, the Party elsewhere has disappeared. Such a situation demands that the ILG move out of seminar rooms and be both a debating group and an 'activist'. Seminars, discussions, workshops and the like are important; but these by themselves will be of little use if what is discussed and agreed upon at such seminars, discussions and workshops is not translated into action. At the same time, let us be clear that even while not excluding politics from our purview, we are not a political party seeking votes.

If we look around us today, we find things going wrong almost everywhere. The process of liberalisation which should have opened up the economy and freed us from needless controls has really not taken off from where it began in 1991. What we see today are overt acts in the name of market reforms and covert acts to stymie them. The reasons are not far to seek. Those who hold authority, be it the permanent or the elected executive, are very reluctant to let go of economic power. And eating away into the vitals of our society is corruption on such a frightening scale that civilized life is itself threatened. This decay in public morality is far more dangerous than all terrorist outfits put together! If civil society (and we in the ILG are a part of that civil society) does not mount a massive offensive on a wide range of fronts (all within the four corners of the law) then we, as a people, are surely heading towards doom.

India's Liberals must make themselves both heard and seen to be active in the public realm. The Liberal Voice is the Voice of Reason – a voice that is sorely needed in these troubled times. It is the ILG's task to ensure that the Liberal position is seen and accepted as a credible alternative to an altogether unsatisfactory status quo

Our Website

Our website www.liberalsindia.com came up in March this year. Detailed 'instructions' have been sent to all our members on how to get the best out of the website. It will only be as good as our members want it to be. As of now the very few members are accessing the website and using it as a channel of communication between members. We urge members who have computers with internet connection to visit the site and see for themselves. Even if one does not own a computer, it is possible, for those who are really interested, to do so at any of the numerous 'cybercafes' that are springing up all over the country including small towns. Spending, say just 30 minutes (might cost Rs.15 to 20) at a cybercafe would be rewarding. We are sure that over a period of time accessing the website will become a matter of habit!

Meanwhile we, at the National Headquarters have sought to engage our members in a discussion on the website, on a number of current events. We are listing some of them to give you a flavour of the subjects discussed:

● Tribal Welfare ● British General Elections ● Violence in Manipur ● Threatened Municipal Strike in Mumbai ● The Musharraf visit ● Government's Profligacy ● The Politics of Vendetta on Jayalalitha ● Recession in the Economy ● The Railway Surcharge ● The Terror of the Mob – The destruction of the Singhania Hospital in Thane Maharashtra by a Shiv Sena mob ● The UTI Fiasco ● The Globalization of Terrorism ● The War Against Terror.

If you wish to read details of the discussions on this site, you can either visit the site using your 'user' name and 'password' which have already been communicated to you.

The website has a two-fold purpose: Informing members and the general public about the ILG.

The second, and equally important purpose, is to engage members in a dialogue, about liberal policies and programmes round the world, network with groups and organisations promoting and pursuing objectives which we feel are consonant with liberal values, and in particular, inculcate such values and perspectives in the young.

Our website is now a little over six months old. As already stated not many are accessing it. Obviously there is much room for improvement. We therefore address these questions to all those who own or have access to computers and the internet:

1. Why do you think a majority of our members are not accessing the website.
2. Should we continue with the website with all the costs involved in its running and maintenance?
3. If yes, then what would you suggest we do, to get our members to use it more often
4. A suggestion has been made by more than one member that the links - 'messages' and 'discussion' should be opened to the general public. The original purpose in keeping it restricted to members was to enable members to freely discuss issues involving Liberal policy and organisational problems. But because of the poor usage of this facility, perhaps there is merit in this suggestion that we open these ~~links~~ to the general public. Should we do so and restrict only the links – email, messages, discussion and 'Directory' to members of the ILG?

Organisational Issues

In May this year we circulated to our members a status report on the work of the ILG for the period May 2000 to April 2001. Among other things we wrote:

"The work of expanding the ILG organisation is crawling at an excruciatingly slow pace. The enthusiasm we saw at the various workshops for activating the ILG, and which spurred us in our efforts to push ahead seems to have evaporated. I wonder if we made a mistake in wanting to revive the ILG?"

This provoked many members to reply. Some telephoned to reassure us that the ILG was indeed necessary and that the problems we had highlighted in our letter were initial 'teething problems'.

Without giving names, we list some of these responses:

1. "We are all aware even when India so desperately needs ILG, winning people is a task. Most people in positions have vested interests. But that is why the ILG is all the more necessary."
2. "There are several reasons why we are not going fast. Most of us are drawn recently into this. To get across to people we need a force of attraction much beyond our principles, position and statements. It is management. A focus on results. Therefore unless we take up four or five projects and get results in the national or state scenes, people will not commit themselves to join us.

"We need a strong centre. Personally, I would love to see and also love to contribute at least one strong position on an economic matter coming out at least once a month - at least one response or reaction to an event once a week out of Mumbai. Whether it gets into the press or not is not the issue. It should come out of Headquarters and get across... "

3. "One of the things definitely needed today is a concerted effort to make the organisation more broad-based and pro-active, and most important, visible to the eyes of the public. Invite people who have made themselves known for their clean thoughts and actions to become members of the ILG eg. Shri Khairnar, Chandrashekar the former Thana Collector, and Medha Patkar Institute a national award to honour those who have stood up for the right against all odds. Initiate public interest litigations; hold debates on issues that threaten democratic institutions and traditions; hold debates at public fora in different cities of India where ILG enjoys a broad base. Submit articles to the newspapers on these topics, and follow them up to see they are published. These activities will not only increase the visibility of ILG but subsequently also give rise to increased membership and possibly funding support. Activate discussions on these topics online on the ILG website. Toss a new topic for discussion every month, invite members to respond, collate the salient points of each discussion at the end of the month, polish it up and get it published as ILG's view point on the topic to national dailies. Institute a national essay competition along similar lines. You will be surprised by how many right thinking individuals exist in Indian society even today. What they do need is a forum, a base, a place where they can give an outlet to their thoughts and comments. Provide them with such a forum which is the ILG!
4. "We need some high profile people as members. Raju has an aversion to this. I totally agree with his point of view that we should focus on building the organisation on the basis of its ideals and values and not people who are members. But we have to remember that we are functioning in a world where marketing oneself is extremely important. Our work on building the organisation on the basis of the work that we do has to go hand-in-hand with the promotional work.
5. Let us each identify at least two people who are known to be important and get them to become members of the ILG. Even if a core group of, let us say, only fifteen identify two such important people to be members and succeed we have a powerful group of thirty well known people to speak on our behalf."

Do you have any views on these or new insights which you would like to share with us? Please write to us - email or snailmail (which is now the favoured expression to denote mail sent through the good old postal service!)

Amendments to the ILG Constitution

Meanwhile, without in any way belittling these criticisms and comments, there is one other reason that we, at the national headquarters, felt needed to be said. And that is our organisational structure. When some of us decided to revive the Indian Liberal Group, we felt that one of the reasons why the ILG had become inactive was due to the fact that it did not have a structure. It was more a platform for debate and discussion than an organisation that could, when needed take on an activist role.

Since our purpose in reviving the ILG was to also give it an activist role, we gave it a structure - in the form of the Constitution of the ILG. This structure, in retrospect, does not seem to be working. One reason perhaps is because it involves financial outlays like renting premises, employing someone to man the office and the need for other related paraphernalia.

The State Committees have not got off to a start. Most of them hardly ever meet. Only one District Committee as prescribed in the Constitution was set up but even this has met only once. Even the National Executive has met just twice since March 2000.

These point out to the fact that, perhaps, our structure is unrealistic and needs to be modified. It is better that we make modifications now when the ILG is, in a manner of speaking, in its infancy, than later when making changes might become more difficult.

Attached to this Newsletter are the following:

- i. Draft Amendments to the Constitution.
- ii. A self-addressed and stamped Inland Letter

The purpose in enclosing a self-addressed stamped Inland Letter is to enable you to respond quickly.

You need to reply not only to (i) above but also to other queries made earlier in this newsletter.

DRAFT AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE INDIAN LIBERAL GROUP
Suggested by S. V. Raju, President, ILG,

Notes:

Articles 1 (Name), 2 (Objectives) and 3 (Headquarters) remain unchanged. We therefore begin with Article 4.

You have till November 10, 2001 to reply with your comments, suggestions and amendments. After November 15 we shall collate the responses and put up the draft with your responses to the National Executive for its consideration. The National Executive will finalise its recommendations on or before December 31, 2001. The draft amendments as recommended by the National Executive will be put on the agenda of the First National Convention of the Indian Liberal Group for its approval. The tentative dates of the Convention: February 16 and 17, 2002.

Meanwhile

as there are no functioning district committees, we shall go ahead and encourage the formation of Local Chapters on an experimental basis. Their experience, even if it be of just two months, will be valuable when the National Convention meets to decide on the amendments to the Constitution.

The following are the draft amendments:

Article 4 - Organisation

4. Organisation

The following will constitute the elective bodies of the ILG:

- The National Council
- The National Executive
- State Councils
- State Committees
- District Committees

Amendment:

Delete The National Council and State Councils.

Substitute States Committee by State Chapters and District Committees by Local Chapters

The amended Article will read as follows:

4. Organisation

The following will constitute the elective bodies of the ILG:

- The National Executive
- State Chapters
- Local Chapters

Explanation: The number of organisational tiers needs to be reduced if the structure is to be both simple and flexible where decision making and immediate response to events are to be achieved..

Article 5 - Membership

5. Membership

Membership shall be open to individuals and like-minded organisations who are in agreement with the objectives and principles of the ILG as stated in Article 2.

Amendment:

Delete: 'and like-minded organisations'

The amended Article will read as follows:

5. Membership

Membership shall be open to individuals who are in agreement with the objectives and principles of the ILG as stated in Article 2.

Explanation: The category of Associate Members has been deleted because it is unrealistic – at least for the present. Why should any other voluntary organisation, which is better known and stronger than we are at present, want to become our Associate Member and pay a fee in the process. This provision can be re-instated when the ILG attains its full potential

Explanation: The National Executive is as the name suggests the managing and executing organ of the ILG at the national level. It should be meeting as often as possible to review discuss and initiate action. To do this the executive needs to be compact, functional and cohesive. Hence the amended article recommends that the President be allowed to choose a team of his or her choice which consists of officers with specific portfolios and ensure that democratic norms are satisfied by getting the nominations confirmed by the delegates at a national convention. Such nominations should be held at a least a month before the Convention so that there is not much of a time-lag between nominations and confirmation.

Explanation: The role envisaged for State Chapters in the revised structure is to manage, monitor, guide and coordinate the work of Local Chapters in the State concerned. The State Chapter should

To ensure that democratic norms are satisfied. These nominations need to be confirmed by the delegates at a State Convention. The President shall nominate the Secretary, the Treasurer and the Public Relations Officer. These nominations shall be confirmed at this meeting.

Explanation: In the revised structure the Local Chapters are the key to the ILG's organisational effectiveness. The Local Chapters are small (as against District Committees which are often very large areas), where members know each other by name, are able to meet at a moment's notice though the prescription is that they must meet at least once a month. They are more or less autonomous acting within the parameters of the ILG's constitution and policies. The recommended strength of Local chapters is 50 though they can go beyond that number. The autonomy of Local Chapters is the Liberal belief in decentralisation being put into practice. Again the President is enabled to choose his team. This will contribute to a cohesive team.
